Calloway Farmers To

Cast Votes

Farmers in Calloway County will vote August 21 on the statewide dairy promotion referendum.

The number of votes cast in Calloway County in the primary election, Saturday totaled 1463, which was a very light turnout for voters here.

Murray High Band Will

The Murray High Senior Band will be among the bands attending annual band camp to be held on the campus of Murray State College during the week of August 29-September 3.

Mr. Irvin Gilson is director of the Murray High School Band which won superior at the State music festival held at Bowling Green earlier in the year.

Five Years Ago Today

Ledger and Times File
August 9, 1949

Arrangements have been completed and preliminary work has been finished at the City Park for the opening of the Calloway County Fair tomorrow.

James D. Starks, machinist mate third class, USN, son of R. A. Starks of Murray, is serving aboard the attack cargo ship, USS Whitley, with the Atlantic Fleet.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lee Armstrong of Lynn Grove are the parents of a son born August 3 at the Murray Hospital.

The American Legion Auxiliary met Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. Joseph Berry, South Sixth Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Myers and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Fain and son are vacationing in Shreveport and New Orleans, La.

Funeral services for Frank Kuykendall, age 80, of Hazel who died Friday were held yesterday at the Oak Grove Baptist Church.

'KNOW WHAT YOU ARE IN FOR?'

EDWARD S. EBBY of St. Louis, newly elected president of Boys' Nation, presents President Eisenhower with a sweater bearing the Boys' Nation insignia at a ceremony in the White House rose garden. The President offered his sympathy to Ebbey, asking, "Do you know what you are in for?" Some 100 members of the organization, sponsored by the American Legion, are in the capital to study government functions.

THE SPORTS PATROL

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

BY JACK CUDDY

United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Upset victories and thrilling performances

by non-favorites are making 1954

a memorably momentous year in sports.

Major league baseball is having a very exciting season because the

New York giants, who dropped out of first division last year, and the

traditionally "fold-up" Cleveland

Indians are threatening to wrest

pennants from the Dodgers and

Yankees respectively.

And the most widely publicized

major-league performer is the

Giants Willie Mays, who came out

of the army late in February

after serving 21 months and after fracturing his left foot last August.

In golf, 39-year-old Chick Har-bert won the PGA title for the first time Tuesday at St. Paul, Minn.,

in his ninth attempt. Even Chick didn't expect the victory.

His St. Paul triumph was almost as unexpected as that of 37-year-old Ed Furgol, who took the U.S.
Open title on June 19 at Baltusrol
despite the handicap of a withered
arm. Incidentally, young Peter W.
Thompson of Australia provided a surprise by winning the British
Open at Southport, Eng., on July
9. And an Australian saloon-keeper named Doug Bechli quit his pub for a few weeks and won the British Amateur.

Babe Comes Back
Mrs. Mildred Babe Didrikson
Zaharias, who had an operation
for cancer in the spring of 1953, amazed physicians and fans by winning the U.S. Women's Open
Golf championship on July 3.

Tennis enthusiasts from Bombay to Berlin were delighted when ancient Jaroslav Ol' Drob Drobny
—the self-exiled Czech who plays out of Egypt — finally won his first Wimbledon Eng. singles championship on July 2. It was Drob's 11th Wimbledon try.

The most amazing sports performance of 1954 was Roger Bannister's conquest of the four-minute-mile barrier. The British medical student covered the mile in 3:59.4 at Oxford, Eng., on May 6.

True, Australian Lander later cut the time to 3:58, but Banister was the pioneer who first penetrated the barrier.

Brooklyn Bklyn. Goat
In boxing, Paddy De Marco — the very lightly regarded "Brooklyn
Billy Goat" — provided a stunning upset by wrestling the lightweight crown from Jimmy Carter, March 5. Aand ex-champ Ezzard Charles, at 32, achieved his greatest popularity by making a thrilling
heavyweight challenge against unbeaten Rocky Marciano, June 17.

Ezzard lost the decision but won
world-wide respect.

On May 1 at Louisville, Ky., a little grey colt named Determine shattered the legend that no grey horse could win the Kentucky
Derby. On that same day, Andy Crevolin, — owner of Determine — won the $100,000, Kyne Handicap at Bay Meadows, Calif., with Im-bro. It should be mentioned that three weeks later, Hasty Road, best favored Correlation in the break-ness.

Brink's Arrest
JOSEPH (SPEC) O'KEEFE, Boston, is shown following his capture in Worcester, Mass., after a wild, five-mile chase by police.
O'Keefe is wanted for questioning in the $2,000,000 Brink's robbery.

Nation's Prettiest
LORNA YOUNG, 17, Salt Lake City, Ut., is shown in New York holding a $1,000 check on being picked as America's prettiest school girl. She is a direct descendant of Brigham
Young, Church of Latter Day Saints founder, (International)

The Taming of Carney Wilde by BART SPICER

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

I CHECKED Doc's room quickly to make sure everything was the way I'd found it. Only the pigskin case was open. I reached for the lid and then glanced quickly at the titles of the books. Doc had "Life on the Mississippi," new copy. He also had "A Stretch Along the River," "Treasury of American Folklore," and a fat volume called "Southern Folkways." Those books took up half the space. There were four others, all the same and all in bright new dust jackets. Four copies of the same book. I picked up one of them.

The title was "The Bully of the Town," and its author was J. R. Treadway. I couldn't see anything about the book that justified anyone buying four copies. I rifled a few pages to see if anything was tucked inside. Then I lifted another copy. The first slipped off the rounded edge of the bed, dropped softly on a rug, and when I looked down, there was the thin smiling face of Doc Riggs. I turned over another copy. There he was again.

"Dr. Joseph Riggs Treadway," the picture caption read, "in his later moments is a professor of American literature. Readers of the best-selling 'Me and Babe,' the hilarious account of Paul Bunyan, and 'West of the Pecos,' which told of Sam Bass and other desperados, know Dr. Treadway to be America's finest, funniest, folklorist since the glorious days of Mark Twain. Once amateur carnival pitcher, he is now a professional humorist and sideshow spieler. Dr. Treadway has..."

I wanted to laugh. The professor on holiday pretends to be a con-man, probably because he has a small streak of larceny in his soul somewhere. And he gets a kick out of posing as a wise guy on the fringe of legality.

"Doc Riggs," I laughed. "You crazy guy, Doc."

Then I crammed the books back inside the travelling case, snapped the locks, turned off the lights and got out of there, stepping out quickly and down the hall.

I went out on to the exposed deck and let the wind blow at me. Then I could laugh safely and let it ride until I knew I would be able to keep a straight face the next time I saw Dr. Joseph Riggs Treadway in his superb performance as ol' Doc Riggs, snakeoil salesman and gold-brick peddler.

I asked Russell what he knew about Sessions.

He said: "I hadn't heard he jumped the boat, but I knew him. I made out his employment record when the chief signed him on."

"What do you think? Could he be Stewart?"

Russell shook his head. "He was just a young boy," he said. "Eighteen or so. I know 'em. Nervous and gawky the way kids are at that age."

"That's just a mannerism," I said. "It could be faked. Stewart was a blond. If he shaved closely, you'd never think he was much older than—oh, 20, maybe. We think he died his hair brown before he left Philadelphia. Well, we can't prove anything here. I'll have somebody check him in Cincinnati. If his references are okay, then he's clear. We won't know till..."

I choked off the talk and glanced down over my protected left shoulder at Doc Riggs grinning face. "Sorry to be caught eavesdropping," he said. "Had no idea you were so close to my man."

"Don't know that I am," I said.

I spent considerable time composing a telegram to Gordinik that would tell him about Sessions without making myself look too ridiculous. If I'd inspected the crew as soon as I came aboard the Dixie Dandy I would have known whether or not Sessions was anything or not. Gordinik would have my wire in the morning. He could call Cincinnati and get a report on Sessions within an hour. I should know the answer by noon. If everything went off properly.

I dawdled around after the dinner bell rang and I got to the table just in time to see Miss Pomeroy being seated between Russell and Mr. John Carlton Buttram. I took an empty seat on the far side of Capt. Jellicoe.

I slid the folded telegram across to Russell. He glanced at it and put it away. Then he leaned across the table toward the captain. "I'll have to send the yawl in at Evansville, captain. Anything I can get for you?"

Capt. Jellicoe rubbed his jaw and said: "Might just get a little of that dry lotion you've got. Seems like the wind takes all the skin off my face these days. Why are you going?"

Russell said: "Just routine, sir."

Miss Pomeroy, Russell and I went out on deck, and Russell said to me: "Anything in town you want beside the telegram?"

"I could use some razor blades, if it's no trouble."

"Nothing is too much bother for de luxe passengers. See you later," He wheeled along the deck.

"Miss Pomeroy," I said. "I've been calling you that, even to myself. Is there anything that goes with it?"

"Ellen Jane," she said. "I write it E. J. for business."

"Ellen Jane," I repeated. "That's nice, Old-fashioned."

She said: "I've been avoiding you most of the day. I wanted to fill your silos. We have a new field chopper ready to do custom work. See or call Elbert Houston and sons. Phone 938-J-1, Murray, Route 3. (A25p)

THE SPORTS PATROL

THE SPORTS PATROL

BY JACK CUDDY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Upset victories and thrilling performances
by non-favorites are making 1954
a memorably momentous year in sports.

Major league baseball is having a very exciting season because the
New York giants, who dropped out
of first division last year, and the
traditionally "fold-up" Cleveland
Indians are threatening to wrest
pennants from the Dodgers and Yankees, respectively.

And the most widely publicized
major-league performer is the Giants Willie Mays, who came out
of the army late in February
after serving 21 months and after fracturing his left foot last August.

In golf, 38-year-old Chock Har-bert won the PGA title for the first
time Tuesday at St. Paul, Minn.,
in his ninth attempt. Even Chick
didn't expect the victory.

His St. Paul triumph was almost as unexpected as that of 37-year-old Ed Furgo, who took the U.S.
Open title on June 19 at Baltusrol
despite the handicap of a withered
arm. Incidentally, young Peter W.
Thompson of Australia provided a surprise by winning the British
Open at Southport, Eng., on July
9. And an Australian saloon-keeper named Doug Bachli quit his pub
for a few weeks and won the British Amateur.

Babe Comes Back
Mrs. Mildred Babe Didrikson
Zaharias, who had an operation
for cancer in the spring of 1953,
amazed physicians and fans by
winning the U.S. Women's Open
Golf championship on July 3.

Tennis enthusiasts from Bombay
to Berlin were delighted when ancient Jaroslav Ol. Drob Drobny
—the self-exiled Czech who plays
out of Egypt—finally won his first Wimbledon Eng. singles championship on July 2. It was his 594 at Oxford, Eng., on May 6.

True, Australian Lander later cut the time to 3:58, but Bannister
was the pioneer who first penetrated the barrier.

Brooklyn Billy Goat
In boxing, Paddy De Marco—the
very lightly regarded "Brooklyn
Billy Goat"—provided a stunning upset by vanquishing the lightweight crown from Jimmy Carter, March
5. And ex-champ Ezzard Charles,
at 32, achieved his greatest popularity by making a thrilling
heavyweight challenge against unbeaten Rocky Marciano, June 17.

Ezzard lost the decision but won
world-wide respect.

On May 1 at Louisville, Ky., a little grey colt named Determine
shattered the legend that no grey
horse could win the Kentucky
Derby. On that same day, Andy Crevelin, owner of Determine, won the $100,000 Kyne Handicap at Bay Meadows, Calif., with Imbros. It should be mentioned that three weeks later Hasty Road best
favored Correlation in the break-
ness.

ON KENTUCKY FARMS

SEEDING TIME IS HERE AGAIN. August is one of the best months for sowing alfalfa, red and crimson clover, and most of the grasses. The time is almost here, too, for barley, oats and rye — all of which when seeded early give a lot of pasture in the cool fall months, provided, of course, we have enough fertility and rainfall. New varieties are important. Try to remember these names: Atlantic alfalfa; Kenland red clover; Balbo rye; Atlantic Forked and Fulvin oats; and Vigo wheat. They are the important varieties of fall seeded crops.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

I CHECKED Doc's room quickly to make sure everything was the way I'd found it. Only the pigskin case was open. I reached for the lid and then glanced quickly at the titles of the books. Doc had "Life on the Mississippi" new copy. He also had "A Stretch Along the River," "Treasury of American Folklore," and a fat volume called "Southern Folkways." Those books took up half the space. There were four others, all the same and all in bright new dust jackets. Four copies of the same book. I picked up one of them.

The title was "The Bully of the Town," and its author was J. R. Treadway. I couldn't see anything about the book that justified anyone buying four copies. I rifled a few pages to see if anything was tucked inside. Then I lifted another copy. The first slipped off the rounded edge of the bed, dropped softly on a rug, and when I looked down, there was the thin smiling face of Doc Riggs. I turned over another copy. There he was again.

"Dr. Joseph Riggs Treadway," the picture caption read, "in his serious moments is a professor of American literature. Readers of the best-selling 'Me and B-a-h' the hilarious account of Paul Bunyan, and 'West of the Pecos,' which told of Sam Bass and other desperadoes, know Dr. Treadway to be America's finest, funniest, and most colorful of novelists." I wanted to laugh. The professor on holiday pretends to be a con-man, probably because he has a small streak of larceny in his soul somewhere. And he gets a kick out of posing as a wise guy on the fringe of legality.

Then I crammed the books back inside the travelling case, snapped the locks, turned off the lights and got out of there, stepping out quickly and down the hall.

I went out on to the exposed deck and let the wind blow at me. Then I could laugh safely and let it ride until I knew I would be able to keep a straight face the next time I saw Dr. Joseph Riggs Treadway in his superb performance as ol' Doc Riggs, snakeoil salesman and gold-brick peddler. I asked Russell what he knew about Sessions.

He said: "I hadn't heard he jumped the boat, but I knew him. I made out his employment record when the chief signed him on."

"What do you think? Could he be Stewart?"

Russell shook his head. "He was just a young boy," he said. Eighteen or 19, I'd say. Nervous and gawky the way kids are at that age.

"That's just a mannerism," I said. "It could be faked. Stewart was a blond. If he shaved closely, you'd never think he was much older than—oh, 20, maybe. We think he dyed his hair brown before he left Philadelphia. Well, we can't prove anything here. I'll have somebody check him in Cincinnati. If his references are okay, then he's clear. We won't know till..."

I choked off the talk and glanced down over my protected left shoulder at Doc Riggs grinning face.

"Sorry to be caught eavesdropping," he said. "Had no idea you were so close to your man."

"Don't know that I am," I said.

I spent considerable time composing a telegram to Grodnik that would tell him about Sessions without making myself look too ridiculous. If I'd inspected the crew as soon as I came aboard the Dixie Dandy I would have known whether or not Sessions meant anything or not. Grodnik would have my wire in the morning. He could call Cincinnati and get a report on Sessions in an hour. I should know the answer by noon, if everything went off properly.

I dawdled around after the dinner bell rang and I got to the table just in time to see Miss Pomeroy being seated between Russell and Mr. John Carlton Buttram. I took an empty seat on the far side of Capt. Jellicoe.

I said the folded telegram across to Russell. He glanced at it and put it away. Then he leaned across the table toward the captain. "I'll have to send the yawl in at Evansville, captain. Anything I can get for you?"

Capt. Jellicoe rubbed his jaw and said: "Might just get me a little of that oty lotion you've got. Seems like the wind takes all the skin off my face these days. Why are you going?"

Russell said: "Just routine, sir."

Miss Pomeroy, Russell and I went out on deck, and Russell said to me: "Anything in town you want beside the telegram?"

"I could use some razor blades, if it's no trouble."

"Nothing is too much bother for de luxe passengers. See you later," he wheeled along the deck.

"Miss Pomeroy," I said. "I've been calling you that, even to myself. Is there anything that goes with it?"

"Ellen Jane," she said. "I write it T.J. for business."

"Ellen Jane," I repeated. "That's nice, old-fashioned."

She said: "I've been avoiding you most of the day. I wanted to think I knew what happened to us this morning. I know how wonderful it is. And I can remember it for a while and then I think what sort of work you do and I freeze inside."

"I'm a private detective," I said.

"Oh, I know it isn't sane, but I can't help it."

"You said something about that yesterday," I said. "It's the touch of violence, isn't it, that bothers you?"

I saw her head nod briefly.

I said: "Sometimes my work throws me up against violence. And then I have to be a little more violent. I like to think the violence doesn't have any necessary effect on a man. But I know it does."

She turned swiftly, and her cold hand seemed suddenly very warm against my cheek. "My dear," she said softly. "Don't say that. . . . I was married once. For 10 days. And before that I was engaged to a boy I had known for most of my life. They were both killed in the war. I don't want to be around men who are always in danger. It makes me cold inside and hard and hateful. Everyone I see becomes an enemy. Everyone is a threat. Can you see that?"

"I suppose so," I said. "But that's no way to live."

"I know," she said. "And I won't. But you'll have to go gently with me for a little while. Not for long. I promise. I wanted you to know how it is with me," she said after a silent moment. "I'll be very difficult sometimes, but, oh, Carney, isn't it wonderful, though?"

"Yes," I said. "Magic. Even got a moon."

She laughed, a soft, easy laughter that died a pleasant death when I kissed her.

Her lips were cool and . . . candid. I could feel her long straight back tremble against my arm but her lips were responsive, firm and serene.

We went inside when the wind veered and slashed at us with the warning of ice and sleet. I was shivering as we walked down the corridor.

"Poor dear," she said in a faint whisper. "How long will this last?"

She touched my thick coat with one finger.

"Maybe it can come off when I get back to Philadelphia. But it isn't much in the way, you know, not if you come inside the cast . . ."

We moved softly to her door and we stood there for long close moments. Then she broke away and went inside.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Clark Thomas

In an exquisite setting of palms, flowers, and candles, Miss Ruth Douglas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Garvice Douglas of Paducah, became the bride of Mr. Bill Clark Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Thomas of Cadiz, in an afternoon ceremony at the First Baptist Church of Murray on Sunday, July 18.

The impressive double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. H. C. Chiles before an altar banked with palms and ferns. Three tall baskets held bouquets of white gladioli. Cathedral candelabra held burning tapers.

As the wedding guests assembled a program of nuptial music was presented by Mr. Charles Douglas, soloist, brother of the bride, and Miss Mary Oneida Wilson, organist. Miss Wilson played "To A Wild Rose," "A Perfect Day" and "Alway." Mr. Douglas' selections were "Because," "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" and "If I Know My Heart," a song written by the bridegroom. The traditional wedding marches were used and during the ceremony Miss Wilson softly played "Oh Promise Me."

Bride's Dress
The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an original gown of Swiss organdy and embroidered organdy over crystal taffeta. The tight fitting bodice was fashioned with a scalloped portrait neckline. The long sleeves, ending in deep points over her hands, were caught at her wrists with tiny self-covered buttons. The bouffant organdy skirt over which a scalloped eyelid organdy peplum was attached, ended in a chapel train.

Her fingertip veil of illusion was caught to a cap of taffeta, sprinkled with pearls and minute rhinestones. She carried a white Bible, topped with a white orchid surrounded by tube roses and showers of ribbons. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom.

Attendants
The bride chose Miss Patty Ross of Lone Oak as her maid of honor, Miss Gloria Phillips of Nortonville and Mrs. Thomas Stephenson of Paducah were the bridesmaids and Miss Carolyn Douglas was her sister's junior bridesmaid. Little Miss Judy Douglas, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl.

The bride's attendants wore identically styled dresses of Swiss organdy and eyelid organdy. Their bodices featured scalloped portrait necklines and short puffed sleeves. Their colonial skirts of organdy were caught at their waists with peplums identical to the bride's. They wore tiny ruffled bands of eyelid organdy, sprinkled with lily-of-the-valley, in their hair. Each band corresponded with the color of the dress.

Miss Ross wore blue organdy and carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations and blue baby's breath tied with blue satin ribbon. The bridesmaids and junior bridesmaid wore pink organdy and their colonial bouquets of white carnations were tied with pink satin ribbon and sprayed with pink baby's breath.

The flower girl, wearing lavender organdy, styled identically to the others, carried a white embroidered organdy covered basket filled with rose petals. A tiny corsage of white and lavender was pinned at her shoulder.

Mr. Seldon Earl Thomas attended his brother as best man. Those serving as ushers were Mr. Garnet Moss of Murray, Buddy Maddox of Pembroke, Mr. Clifton Courtney and Mr. Harold Skaggs of Paducah.

Mothers
The bride's mother wore a street length dress of pink linen and lace. The lace bodice was designed with tiny rhinestones and pearls around the sculptured neckline. Her large picture hat and other accessories were white. At her shoulder a corsage of gardenias was pinned. The mother of the bridegroom wore a street length dress of gray nylon appliqued with gray lace. Her bodice featured swirls of pleated nylon marquisette and she wore a small white hat trimmed with red velvet. Her other accessories were white. She wore a corsage of gardenias at her shoulder.

Reception
Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Baptist Student Center. Miss Jean Puckett kept the guest register. The reception table was overlaid with a white imported linen cloth. One end of the table held the bride's three tiered wedding cake while the crystal punch bowl was placed at the other end. The beautiful centerpiece was white gladioli flanked by candles.

Mrs. Allen Anthony presided at the punch bowl assisted by Mrs. Victor Mitchell. Mrs. Howard Pember served the cake assisted by Mrs. Rachel Paschall and Mrs. W. D. Kelly. As the reception guests assembled Miss Mary Oneida Wilson presented a selection of love songs on the piano.

After the reception the couple left on an unannounced wedding trip. For traveling the bride wore a blue linen suit styled with a short fitted jacket and straight skirt. Her accessories were white and an orchid was pinned at her shoulder.

Rev. and Mrs. Thomas are now making their home in Orchard Heights, Murray.

BLOCK THAT BEETLE

SALEM, Ore. — The plum curculio is plumb lethal on plum, crops and also on apple, pear, cherry and apricot crops, and the state department of agriculture has urged farmers to be on the alert to keep this strange-looking snout beetle out of Oregon.

Cherry Corner News

After the refreshing rain, Saturday night, the first day of August greeted us on a nice cool Sunday, which was the closing day of our revival at the Cherry Corner Baptist Church. Rev. Maddox from Hopkinsville, a very able speaker, delivered interesting messages to a packed house each evening, and large crowds attended the afternoon services at 2:30.

Rev. Bob Dunn, of Paducah, led the singing for the revival and he had a large group of children in the Junior Choir, who enjoyed doing their part.

Mr. Clarence Hurt and a friend from Metropolis, were visitors at the Cherry Corner revival on Friday evening. They were deacons of the First Church in Metropolis where Rev. Maddox was pastor there several years before going to Hopkinsville.

Rev. Garnett Moss is in Memphis this week. He is evangelist in a revival there.

Mrs. Moss and baby son, Kent, are in Hopkinsville this week, visiting relatives while Rev. Moss is in Memphis.

Mrs. Clifford Farris, Mrs. Artelle Norman and Mrs. James Kindred visited Mrs. George Erwin, of Mayfield one day last week. Little David Pitts had eye examinations, as he is having to put on glasses. This will be David's first year at school which begins in a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Parker and Carolann, of St. Louis were in Murray last week end to visit Mrs. Parker's daughter, Mrs. Bob Parks, who is a patient at the Murray Hospital.

The Charlie Parkers and Mrs. Nora Parker were Friday night visitors of the Otus Outland.

Mrs. Frocy Ligon, of Oklahoma, is visiting the Elmus Outlands of Route 5, and Mrs. Francis Wilkerson of Murray and other relatives and friends.

Mrs. Carl Farris was a visitor one afternoon of Mrs. Francis Wilkerson and Mrs. Frocy Ligon in Murray.

Bill Roberts and daughter, of Detroit, were visitors of Hoyt Roberts of Sycamore St. and other relatives. They attended Saturday night and Sunday services at the Cherry Corner revival.

A household shower honoring Mr. and Mrs. Gene Knight was given recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hassel Shelton. They were given many lovely and useful gifts by their friends and relatives.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Phillips, who were married a few weeks ago.

Our sympathy to Mrs. Pearl Clayton, who has been an invalid for eight or nine years. Mrs. Pearl lost her companion, Mr. Porter Clayton a few days ago.

Little Stevie Barnett was an all night visitor of his great Uncle Mason Outland and family Thursday night of last week.

Miss Oleta Elkins, of New Concord and her parents and other relatives vacationed in Detroit with relatives recently.

The Napoleon Parkers are planning to visit sometime in August. The Napoleon Parkers are planning to visit sometime in August. The Napoleon Parkers are planning to visit sometime in August. The Napoleon Parkers are planning to visit sometime in August.

Glenda Sue Dale Outland may make the trip to Oregon with the Parkers to help do the driving.
